2 YORKERS FACE PRISON TERMS; HELD FOR COURT

Walter Lease and Albert Shaffer Arrested By Local State Police.

GUN AND GAS FOUND IN AUTO

Faced with a maximum sentence of three years in prison and a fine of $3,000, two Yorkers, Walter Leese, 22, and Albert Shaffer, 24, were held under $1,000 bail each on charges of carrying a concealed deadly weapon, without a permit, in an automobile, before Justice of the Peace Neil W. Gibson this morning.

Shaffer entered a plea of guilty at the hearing, but Lease pleaded not guilty.

Leese and Shaffer were arrested early Friday morning by Sergeant Russell W. Frutchey and Trooper S. J. Walsh, who were checking traffic on the Lincoln Highway, three miles east of here.

On the seat of the car between Leese, the driver of the light roadster, and Shaffer was a loaded .22 calibre revolver, state police said.

In the rear of the machine officers said they found fifteen gallons of gasoline in a can and a piece of hose which the troopers believe had been used to syphon the fuel from the tank of another automobile.

Admit Stealing Gas

The young men told the officers they had been to Cold Spring park, near Waynesboro, Thursday evening, and at first denied that the can of gasoline had been stolen. Later, however, the men admitted stealing the gasoline, the officers said.

Leese told the officers the revolver belonged to him. He said he did not have a state license to carry the weapon.

Although officers have no reports of gasoline thefts in the vicinity of Waynesboro, they are checking up this angle of the arrests with a view toward laying additional charges against the pair.

The hearing for the pair was held at the Adams county jail.

LITTLESTOWN SHOE FACTORY MAY BE SOLD

Two Firms Seek Newark Company; Increased Force May Result.

ONE PLANT RUNS FULL TIME FORCE

Negotiations are in progress through which it is believed the Newark shoe factory, Littlestown, will be sold to one of two companies within a few days.

Major Robert L. Campbell, president of the Campbell shoe company, Harrisonburg, Virginia, and the Hagerstown leather company, and the Littlestown shoe company are reported to be negotiating for the Newark plant.

If the sale is made the Cannon shoe company, which now owns the Newark plant, will reserve the innersole factory in order to supply its McSherrystown shoe manufacturing branch with innersoles.

To Increase Force

If the Campbell interests take over the Newark factory, it is reported that about 100 persons would be given immediate employment and that this force would be increased as rapidly as workmen could be taught and new machinery installed.

Those close to Major Campbell predict that within a year there would be employed between 400 and 500 persons. The Campbell shoe company would manufacture men's work shoes, with a possibility that later on a better line might be added.

Arthur J. Beford, who was associated with the Newark shoe company, and who is recognized as one of the outstanding leather men of the country, would be superintendent of the new factory in charge of production. It is believed that Major Campbell's brother ,who is an executive of the company, would be the general manager.

Running Full Time

The Littlestown shoe factory is one of the bright spots in Littlestown's business horizon. The factory is working full time, and has sufficient orders on hand to keep going at top speed until November 1. The company is said to be turning down orders for shoes because it is unable to turn them out fast enough, and for this reason is seeking additional factory space.

ROBINS SEEN IN CHICAGO

Missing Prohibitionist Reported To Have Been In Illinois Metropolis.

Washington, Sept. 10 (AP).—With a host of theories and a scarcity of clues, federal agents joined in an intensive search for Colonel Raymond Robins, prominent prohibitionist, who disappeared while presumably on his way to Washington to keep and appointment with President Hoover.

Attorney General Mitchell ordered 185 special agents of the prohibition bureau into the hunt, because some believed Robins might have been kidnapped by bootleggers, against whom he had been active. However, there was nothing tangible, Mitchell said, to substantiate that theory.

Prohibition officers immediately began investigating a report that a woman friend of the Robins family had seen the colonel in Chicago yesterday. Mrs. W. Requa Bryant said in Chicago that she had known Robins for twenty years and was "positive" the man she saw was the colonel.

"He appeared distraught, and for that reason I didn't speak to him," she said.

The prohibition bureau, however, had not received a report from its Chicago agents and had nothing further to say.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the justice department bureau of investigation, said if the question of ransom and interstate kidnapping entered the case his men would go to work.

Prohibition agents here checked many angles of the case. They studied reports from Florida concerning an alleged bootlegging conspiracy that Colonel Robins had uncovered near his Brooksville (Florida) home. Mrs. Robins expressed fear that Florida bootleggers might have kidnapped or killed her husband. Both Robins' friends in Florida said they did not know he had any enemies there. They discounted reports that his prohibition activities might have a bearing on the case.

Tammany Will Back Roosevelt

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Upon motion of John F. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall, the democratic state committee Friday pledged "its active and loyal support and that of the united democracy" of New York to the national candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Speaker John N. Garner.

Mr. Curry's gesture of loyalty to the man whom his associates credit with forcing the resignation of James J. Walker as mayor and with threatening the destruction of Tammany's domination of the democratic party in the state was the only unexpected development of a meeting which skated smoothly and swiftly over the rifts in the organization.

Albany was selected as the convention city and October 3 and 4 chosen as the dates, while the republicans are holding their convention in Buffalo. James A. Farley, Governor Roosevelt's campaign manager, remained undisturbed in his post as state chairman, and Tammany and its allies continued their control of the substructure of party machinery by assuring themselves a majority on the committee appointed to make arrangements for the convention, to draft the platform, to choose presidential electors and a keynoter.

Fall Out of Plane Saves Passenger While Crash Brings Death to Three

El Paso, Sept. 10 (AP)—Survivor of a transport plane crash in the Guadalupe mountains in which three others were killed, George A. Davidson, of Richmond, California, was brought down here Friday after carried on a stretcher down the steep mountain side by seventeen men working in relays.

W. J. (Bryant) Robbins, pilot of the American airways; Francis W. Briggs, co-pilot, and Victor Ellman, of St. Louis, a passenger, were killed. Members of the rescue party said the three were burned beyond recognition. Returning over another trail to the scene of the wreck, they hoped to be able to bring out the bodies.

Davidson, a passenger, told Dr. F. P. Miller he tumbled out as the ship broke in two and burst into flames. The others were trapped.

Suffering from exposure with burns on face and hands and broken ribs, he was in a semistupor when rescuers reached him.

Davidson rolled down a 100-foot cliff after he fell from the plane and remained stunned several hours. When he regained consciousness he walked two miles. Chilled by the cold night air of the mountains he stopped and built a fire. He was found about 8 o'clock Thursday night.

It was not until 9:30 a. m. Friday that the rescue party succeeded in getting him down to the highway, where he was placed in an ambulance and brought to a hospital in El Paso.

The plane, eastbound, struck within 150 feet of the top of one of the mountains in the Guadalupe range, seventy-five miles east of here, in a fog Thursday morning. The wreckage was discovered early Friday by two other American airway pilots, Ira McConaughey and Victor Miller. They had to fly twelve miles to find a landing place after discovering the wreck.

"I had given up hope of ever being found," Davidson mumbled through scorched lips to his rsecuers.

"Planes passed over me. I tried to attract their attention, but it was too dark."

"The last thing I remember was unbuckling my safety belt and fighting my way out of the terrible flames. I rolled and rolled down the side of the mountain.

"My eyes were blistered over; I couldn't see. I cut the blisters open with my pocket knife. After building a little fire to keep off the cold, I walked a long way in search of water.

"My back hurt. I must have hurt it when I rolled down the hillside."

Dr. Miller said: "Davidson is the nerviest man I ever saw. In the condition he was in he was considerate for the men who struggled with his stretcher down that tortuous trail. He would mumble for them not to mind when one of them would stumble and jar the stretcher.

Davidson is an oil-refinery official.

Ellman, 23, was a violinist and actor well known in film circles.

Authorities Seek Missing Woman; Paul Bern Is Buried

Los Angeles, Sept. 10 (AP).—Jean Harlow, a tragic figure in black, spoke a last pathetic good-bye to her dead husband, Paul Bern, Friday as authorities investigated the disappearance from a Sacramento river boat of a woman they believed to be Dorothy Millette, a former actress known as Mrs. Paul Bern.

Weeping and leaning on the arms of her stepfather, Marino Bello, and Joseph Sherman, film studio employe, the film star, her platinum blonde hair escaping from beneath her black hat brim, walked slowly into the chapel where private funeral services for Bern were conducted.

Sister Collapses

Mrs. William Marcus, a sister of Bern, film producer, who shot himself to death Sunday night, collapsed in grief outside the chapel and was half carried to her seat among the mourners, who included many of the film celebrities of Hollywood.

While Conrad Nagel, film actor, offered a eulogy at the funeral, authorities investigated the possibility Miss Milette, identified as a former common-law wife of Bern, may have ended her life by leaping from the river steamer, Delta King, as it was en route from San Francisco to Sacramento, the ship's stewardness said:

Luggage and women's apparel, believed to have belonged to the titianhaired woman who purchased a ticket in the name of Dorothy Millette, was found in a stateroom.

Boatmen said it was possible she left the steamer witnout being noticed.

A score of policemen prevented nearly 300 persons from entering the funeral chapel. Only notables of the film world and a few close personal friends were allowed inside. Miss Harlow arrived in a closed limousine with her stepfather, her mother, Mrs. Marino Bello, and two friends, Mrs. Ida Koverman and Willis Goldbeck.

Near Miss Harlow stood Henry Bern, brother of the producer who killed himself for a reason not yet officially decided. It was revealed by an autopsy that Bern, although not suffering from disease, lacked a physical development which physicians said produced melancholia.

Mrs. Depew Freed Of Kidnapping Count

Kansas City, Sept. 10 (AP).—Mrs. Ethel Depew, wife of the man who plotted the kidnapping of Mrs. Nell Q. Donnelly, wealthy garment manufacturer, last December, was acquitted Friday night of a charge of participating in the abduction. The jury deliberated thirty-six minutes.

Mrs. Depew, who was arrested in Bloomsburg, Pa., was in a state of near hysteria when the buzzer in the courtroom sounded, a signal that the jury had reached a verdict.

She broke down and sobbed with the reading of the verdict, but quickly regained her composure and thanked the jurors.

Notices were mailed to 55 men who had applied for jobs on a road construction project in North Carolina. Only 21 reported for work.

Partisan Speeches Will Have No Place In Hoover Campaign

New York, Sept. 10 (AP)—Everett Sanders, republican national chairman, announced that President Hoover will make no partisan speeches during the presidential campaign.

In telling at the party's Eastern headquarters of the president's plan not to make a personal campaign, Sanders said:

"That does not mean that he won't make any speeches at all. He may make a speech or two in the west and probably one in the east ,but they will not be partisan speeches."

He said no consideration had been given to the selection of dates for the addresses.

Sands, who is director-in-chief of the Hoover-Curtis campaign forces, came here to discuss the ballot drive with eastern division leaders.

He had lunch with Jeremiah Millbank, eastern treasurer; Daniel E. Pomeroy, national committeeman from New Jersey; W. Kingsland Macy, New York state chairman; George Akerson, publicity director; former United States Representative James H. Fafferty, of California, and United States Representative Bertrand Snell, of New York.

He said the campaign "is progressing nicely" and that the republican organization throughout the country was functioning well.

To all questions about campaign funds he replied that Millbank had practically completed a volunteer organization for New England and the Middle Atlantic states, and that he felt gratified by the response thus far to the call for funds.

"President Hoover, in my opinion, will carry enough states at the election to assure him the electoral vote needed," he concluded.

Lewis Defeats Kirchmeyer In Nineteen Minutes

Philadelphia, Sept. 10.—Ed (Strangler) Lewis, former ruler of the heavyweight grapplers, extended his streak of victories to three in a row over Rollend Kirchmeyer, persistent matman from out Oklahoma way, when he scored a brilliant conquest in the opening match of the indoor season at the Arena Friday night.

The Strangler tossed his Oklahoma foe with a crotch hold after 19 minutes and 48 seconds.

Count Zarynoff, 199, declared Ukrainian nobleman, was declared the winner over Charley Strack, 235, after eighteen minutes seven seconds of the semiwindup listed for a half hour. Strack, whose home is at Spring Valley, New York, was disqualified because of his persistent use of illegal tactics.

Referee Baumgartner took action against the offender after repeatedly endeavoring without success to have Strack cease gouging, punching and other unlawful actions.

Fire Threatens To Raze Town

Towanda, Sept. 10.—Firemen from Monroeton, Canton, Dushore and Towanda joined forces late Friday and, after a desperate battle, saved the town of Monroeton in Bradford county from destruction.

One house, a garage, granary, three barns and a tobacco shed were destroyed and extensive damage had been done to the Marcy hotel, another barn and tobacco shed and three other homes.

The fire, first noticed in a haystack, is believed to have started from a thresherman's engine or from sparks from a railroad which passes nearby.

A brisk wind carried the sparks over the whole town, the fire breaking out in half a dozen sections at once.

Firemen responded quickly to calls for assistance and had the blaze under control before dark this evening.

Davis Wins First Gesture

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—Senator Davis, of Pennsylvania, obtained a court order Friday directing United States Attorney George Z. Medalie to show cause why he should not be tried separately from three other defendants on charges involving an alleged fraternal lottery.

At the same time the senator pleaded not guilty to a superseding indictment which was returned Thursday. The bond of $1000 which he posted after pleading to the original indictment, was continued.

The order against Medalie is returnable Monday morning before Judge T. Blake Kennedy, of Wyoming, who is sitting in this district. Senator Davis said in his affidavit that if he were required to wait until the other defendants were ready for trial, "A grave injustice would be done, not only to me but to the electorate of the State of Pennsylvania."

The senator, up for reelection in November, added that the indictment was being "made use of for political purposes" by his political foes.

Medalie said he had not decided whether he would oppose the move for a separate trial.

Vines Forced to Play Five Stirring Sets to Upset Sutter at U. S. Nets

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP)—Ellsworth Vines, Jr., won his way into the final of the national tennis championship Friday, but it took the Pasadena "pounder" so long to subdue Clifford Sutter, New Orleans collegian, that night set in before Wilmer Allison and Henri Cochet could settle their argument in the other semifinal.

The famous Frenchman and the dauntless Texan each had won two sets when it became too dark longer to see the ball. Cochet won the first set, 6-1; Allison the next two, 12-10 and 6-4, and Cochet the fourth, 6-3, in a brilliant exhibition of tennis.

They resumed their duel at 10 o'clock this morning (standard time), the winner of the deciding set to face Vines later in the day for what amounts to the championship of the tennis world. If Cochet beats Allison, whom he conquered in the recent Davis cup matches, the final will be at the early hour of 1 p. m., as the French star has to catch a boat.

Vines caused all the grief when he struggled for three solid hours in eliminating Sutter, a stubborn adversary. The scores were 4-6, 8-10, 12-10, 10-8, 6-1.

Chapter 18

HORROR VISITS NAN

Nan sat up in bed in the dark. Something had awakened her, but she didn't know what it was.

At first the darkness seemed to fill the room, pressing in upon her so that the posts of the bed, the red hangings, which she had pushed back as far as possible, and the big wardrobe, which was somewhere on the opposite side of the room, were all lost in an even velvet dark. Then the curtain at the far window moved in some unseen current of air, and a pale luminous streak divided the darkness. The immediate effect was to make the room seem immensely large.

A moment before, everything had been pressing in upon her; she could have touched the walls with her outstretched hand. And now, with a puff of wind, everything was immensely far away. The suddenness of it made her feel dizzy. She watched the streak of light, and tried to steady herself. It came and went, and came and went again.

Nan sat bolt upright, one hand on the bed and the other at her throat. She had waked like that, and she had not moved yet. Then, as the curtain was first sucked in against the window and then on a veering gust blown back into the room, her hand dropped and she took a long breath. It was bright moonlight outside. The blown curtain let the moonlight in, and filled the room with an uncertain dusk. She could see the bed-posts against it, and the wardrobe like a black cave. Then everything was dark again as the curtain fell back into place.

She drew another long breath. It must have been the wind that had waked her. She pushed back her hair and relaxed. It was rather horrid to find yourself sitting up in the dark and not know how you had got there. For a moment she had not known where she was—in what bed, in what room, in what place.

She pulled up a pillow behind her back and watched the moonlight run across the floor like a wave flung up by the tide. Like a wave it ran back again. She could see all the furniture now, mysteriously soft and large. A pleasant drowsiness began to steal over her. She thought back to the evening before. Jervis had taken her over the house. She had made great friends with Bran. She wished people were as easy to make friends with as dogs.

A drowsy warmth flowed over her; she slipped a little further down in the bed. She was slipping down into soft flowing waters of sleep, when all of a sudden they ebbed away and she was awake again, her heart beating and her eyes staring into the darkness.

It wasn't the flapping of the curtain that had waked her before, and it wasn't the flapping of the curtain that had waked her now. It was a sound—not in the room—somewhere else. Now that she heard it, she could remember that she had heard it before. The memory was like an echo just caught on the edge of sound. She did not yet know what it was that she had heard. And then, as she listened, it came again—a faint whining noise, followed by what sounded like a footstep. It was so faint that it puzzled her to guess why it should have roused her from her sleep.

She threw back the bed-clothes and sat on the edge of the bed, listening all the while. The sound came again—a long faint whine, and a distinct padding step. The two things together said Bran; but instead of reassurance a wave of fear rushed in. Bran—downstairs in the hall — padding up and down and whining. . . . . It frightened her beyond her own power of knowing why.

She slipped down on the floor, went barefoot to the door, and stood with the knob in her hand, summoning up her courage to open it. The knob was cold, and very smooth with age; it was mahogany like the heavy door. Just above her hand there was a bolt. She could slip the bolt and get back into bed again.

She turned the knob and opened the door; and as she did so, the curtain blew in with the draught and the moonlight ran across the floor. She stepped outside and closed the door behind her, holding to it. There was a soft woolly mat under her feet.

Her room was at the end of a short passage. The passage gave upon the stair head. The dog's whine and the sound of his padding feet came up the well of the stair.

She latched her door and went along the passage to the head of the stairs. It was not dark here. The moon struck through a long window set with painted glass, bleaching its colours and making them like colours seen in a dream. Nan leaned on the rail and looked over into the dark hall. The padding and the whining had stopped. She called softly.

"Bran—Bran—" and immediately she heard him take the stair. She saw him for a mmoent, huge and black against the lighted window, said his name again, and then he was pressing against her, jerking his head up under her hand and whimpering.

"What is it?" said Nan. "What is it, Bran?"

He nuzzled her hand and whined.

All at once Nan was twice as frightened as she had been before. She wanted to get back to her room and bolt herself in. She took Bran by the collar, and he ran with her. She was breathing hard as she shot the bolt.

When she turned from the door, she saw Bran reared on his hind legs at the window with the curtain blowing round him. The moonlight threw a monstrous shadow almost to her feet. His nails scraped on the sill.

She ran to him and pulled away the curtain.

"What is it? What's the matter, Bran?"

He quivered and blew against the glass. With her hand on his neck she could feel his hackles rise. She pressed against him and looked out. The window looked to the south-west. It was open at the top. Bran pushed the glass with his nose and whimpered. It was a heavy old-fashioned window, and Nan strained as she raised it. The wind flooded the room—a soft, damp wind—and she and Bran leaned out together.

The terrace beneath the window looked like grey blotting-paper with symmetrical blots of ink at regualr intervals. The blots were flower-beds, full of crimson and scarlet and orange and flame-coloured snapdragons. They had been brilliant under the grey sweep of the rain; now, under the moon, they were blots of ink. It was queer to think of all those bright colours asleep.

The terrace was wide. A low balustrade guarded it. Then the grass fel laway, shadowy, mysterious, to the unseen ravine, whose waters made a deep undertone to the soughing of the wind.

All at once the moonlight drained away. And then under her hand she felt Bran's great throat muscles thrum to a growl too faint to reach her ears. She pressed closer to him and whispered,

"What is it?"

He flung up his head impatiently. The thrumming went on. A gleam of light slipped out between two hurrying clouds. A far off rumble seemed to answer Bran.

Nan rubbed her cheek against his ear.

"Darling lamb—don't you like thunder? Is there going to be a storm?"

He shook himself free and leaned forward. She could hear him growling now. A pale violet flare changed the sky, and was gone again. Bran quivered and snuffed the wind. Nan pulled at his collar, and might just as well have pulled at the hasp of the window.

A second flare lit everything with a sudden briliance. Nan saw the black shadow of the ravine, the ink-black trees beyond it, and the curve of the cliff. It was when it was gone that she knew she had seen something else—a black shape on the edge of the dark ravine. And the shape was the shape of Robert Leonard.

Another flash, and he was gone.

Dwelling Houses Lead Fire Losses

According to reports of the bureau of fire protection, Pennsylvania state police, the number of fires in dwelling houses continue to lead the fire loss for individual structures. Five years ago the annual fire loss in Pennsylvania included 11,669 buildings of this class, destroyed or damaged by fire, involving a loss of $6,910,000, fire bureau official announced, compared with 10,157 dwellings and a loss of $4,469,000 for the past year, with but a small variation of the ratio during the intervening years. An analysis of these losses show that trivial causes were responsible for over 75 per cent of these fires.

Tar Heel Athletes Pay With Melons

Chapel Hill, N. C. (AP).—Three of the University of North Carolina's best football prospects have taken pay for playing baseball.

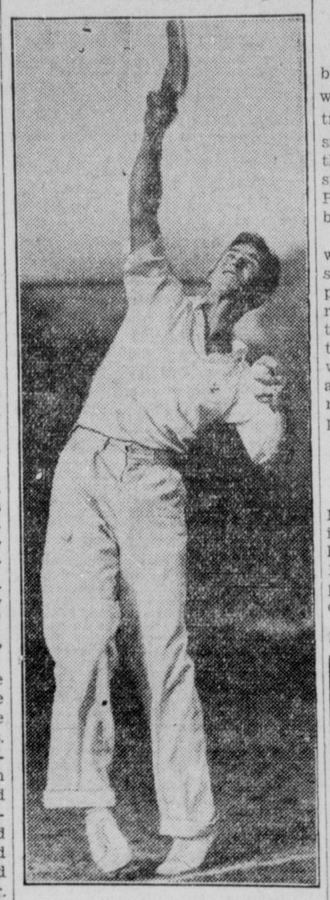

That, smiled Chuck Collins, head coach, might be serious if the Southern conference starts an investigation on account of having strict rules regarding such matters.

However, Coach Collins isn't worried much about it, for he was the one who told the story here.

Watt Jones, Stuart Chandler and Norman McGaskill, all candidates for the varsity this fall, played baseball for Point Harbor, which won from Maples 4 to 2 and took the championship of East Carolina thereby.

The three players received in toto for expenses $2.35, ten watermelons and a peck of peas!

REMOVE SIGNS FROM ROADWAYS

28,446 Pieces Of Illegal Advertising Destroyed During Recent Campaign.

Maintenance employes of the Pennsylvania department of highways in the annual clean-up campaign just ended removed 28,446 pieces of illegal advertising from roadsides under department control, according to an announcement made today.

The campaign was directed chiefly at illegal signs within the highway right-of-way, but with the consent of property owners other illegal signs marring the landscapes were removed. Every type of illegal sign was included in the crop; cards, boards, rusty metal signs, posters and tattered blurbs. Among the most offensive are small "snipe" signs attached to trees, posts, buildings and telephone poles, usually in direct violation of the law, the report said. Signs erected under leases were not disturbed.

Improvement was most evident in Westmoreland county, where 4,394 legends of every description were pulled down. Other counties where the harvest was in excess of 1,000 are Berks, Delaware, Montgomery and Lawrence. Honors for the fewest illegal signs went to Wayne county, where only nine were found. Columbia and Fulton counties were tied for second honors, with 12 signs each.

The report pointed out that this year's campaign netted 28,446 illegal signs, compared with more than 30,000 removed last year.

"We are hopeful," Secretary Sam Lewis said, "that merchants and others will come to realize this form of advertising is unprofitable as well as illegal."

Night Grid Games Pay At Cincinnati

Cincinnati (AP)—"Sold on night football, the University of Cincinnati is spending $15,000 on new lights for its gridiron confident that the investment will be profitable just as was the older system erected in 1922.

The new lights will be three times more powerful than the old lights. From six towers 150 feet high 120,000 watts will shine upon the field. The old lights had a wattage of only 40,000.

The new equipment, it is intended, will avoid glare to spectators and players and be high enough to prevent the losing of a high punt in the darkness.

The old system was one of the first for football fields in the country.

NO EXPENSES

County officers have no authority to deduct from motor fines the cost of mintaining prisoners in county jails who are serving sentences for violations of the vehicle code, Secretary of Revenue Clyde L. King said today. In some counties authorities have taken the position that the state should help bear the expense of maintaining vehicle code violators sentenced to jail and have arbitrarily deducted this expense from fines due the state. The department will demand full payment of all motor fines collected, the secretary stated.

BOY PREFERS PLAY TO WORK

Eleven-year-old Boy Protests Actions Of Neighbor's Children.

Every small boy at some time or other has ritten his own excuse to the teacher for absence from school. Eleven-year-old Tony R. sets a new precedent by writing a letter of protest to the department of labor and industry concerning his, and his five-year-old sister's violation of the child labor law, signing the name of a neighborhood playmate. The letter follows: "Dear madam: I will tell you something about Mrs. R's children, they wrap screws and never are out playing. Yours truly, Joe M."

Two months ago an investigator from the bureau of women and children visiting Tony's home, found him and his five-year-old sister wrapping screws. Tony heard the investigator tell his mother that it was a violation of the child labor law for children under 14 years of age to do home work, and that the employer would be compelled to take the work away if the practice continued. The mother promised that it would not happen again, but Tony's father forced him to leave his play to wrap screws day after day, often until nine o'clock at night.

Then he got Joe from across the street to help him write the letter. The representative of the bureau of women and children investigated again and found the children working. The employer withdrew the work and Tony is out playing again with the other boys.

LONDON ZOO CLAIMS WORLD'S FIERCEST DOGS

London (AP).—The Whipsnade zoo thinks it has the four worst tempered dogs in the world. They are Tibetan mastiffs, sent by the British minister to Tibet, and they don't like anybody.

The trouble is that they look as peaceable as if longing for someone to tickle their ears. But even their keepers go armed when feeding them.

They are not unlike Samoyeds in general appearance—thick bushy, coats, broad heads.

GRAIN PASSES AS FIRST CROP

Dairying And Poultry Raising Forces Grain Raising Into Background.

Once the greatest grain-producing state in America, Pennsylvania now has only 3000 farms where cash grain crops are the principal source of income, according to a federal census report just released.

Instead of grain, Pennsylvania has developed a leading position in dairying and poultry keeping with one out of every three farms specializing in one or the other of these enterprises. The great dairy counties according to percentage of farms specializing in this business are: Bradford, Centre, Chester, Crawford, Potter, Susquehanna, Tioga, Warren, Wayne and Wyoming. Some idea of the wide-spread drift to dairying is indicated by the fact that approximately 26 per cent of the farms in Pennsylvania are now classed as dairy farms compared with only 15 per cent thirty years ago.

Next to the general and dairy classes, the most prevalent type in the commonwealth is the part-time farmer who is classified as such because he spends 150 days or more in non-farming occupations. Part-time farmers are now scattered throughout the commonwealth, being especially prevalent in Centre, Clearfield and Fayette counties.

Other interesting facts brought out by the 1930 census include: (1) Farm products used by the farm families total approximately $50,000,000 annually; (2) Forest prodsusts sold by farmers equal $4,750,000 each year; (3) Farmers in Pennsylvania secure as receipts from boarders and lodgers $2,275,000 a year, these receipts being especially high in Pike, Monroe and Wayne counties.

The division of the 172,419 farms of the state into the various types, based upon principal source of income, is as follows: General, 50,959; cash-grain, 3057; crop-specialty, 7975; fruit, 2182; truck, 2206; dairy, 45,380; animal-specialty, 3103; stock-ranch, 30; poultry, 11,982; self-sufficing, 16,073; abnormal, 23,287; institution or country estate, 417; part-time 21,217; boarding and lodging 456; forest-products, 827; unclassified, 6555.

Read The Bible With Us Daily

As a jewel of gold in a swine's snout, so is a fair woman which is without discretion.

The desire of the righteous is only good: but the expectation of the wicked is wrath.

There is that scattereth, and yet increaseth; and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty.

The liberal soul shall be made fat: and he that watereth shall be watered also himself.

He that withholdeth corn, the people shall curse him: but blessing shall be upon the head of him that selleth it.

He that diligently seeketh good procureth favour: but he that seeketh mischief, it shall come unto him.

He that trusteth in his riches shall fall: but the righteous shall flourish as a branch.

He that troubleth his own house shall inherit the wind: and the fool shall be servant to the wise of heart.

The fruit of the righteous is a tree of life, and he that winneth souls is wise.

Behold, the righteous shall be recompensed in the earth: much more the wicked and the sinner.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE LIBRARY OF THE MIND

I ALWAYS feel lost, and wanting for something, when I find myself bereft of books and reading. And yet, not wholly so, for long ago I formed the habit of memorizing bits in prose and rhyme that touched my fancy.

Now, when alone and far from books, I can reach into the little Library of my Mind, which I have arranged myself, and there take for immediate reading or thought, the small volumes which have accumulated over the years.

I recall visiting the bedside of a friend who was a great student of Shakespeare. Though he was extremely ill and suffering, his face brightened and glowed as he recited to me the thrilling parts of "Hamlet." Page after page, he recalled and dramatically recited to me, with fine feeling and appreciation. I have a friend in my office whose ability for selecting rare bits of literature amounts to genius. They stream out of his mind, like the waters from a freshet.

The things memorized in youth stay the longest. I can recall things that I memorized in Grammar School, but much of later memorizing has to return in fragments!

It is a wonderful practice to write out an outline of a book, after reading it. This not only helps to cultivate an improved diction and a clearer method of thinking, but it fixes the heart of a story, or book, firmly in one's mind.

From the library of your mind you may loan as you will—and no fear that anything will be stolen from you. That which you loan, you keep!

Each day, and throughout each year, you may add to this library of your mind. You can make it as large as you will. And as interesting. And you don't have to worry about the cost of any volume—for their price is merely the price of pains and selection.

RETURNS

WHAT a world of joy there is to the returns of life. The return to the town, or home, in which we were born, the school where we studied in youth, to the locations where important events of our lives occurred!

Memories are very precious, but to have them re-colored at different periods freshens them.

I recall my return to one of the little towns where I spent many years of my youth. I believe that a smile must have broken out all over me as I recalled the stirring events of a childhood—in no way unusual—but typical of every childhood in a small town. I wondered about the chaps I had known and what they had made of their lives. A few of them had settled down to prosaic lives where they had been reared—one or two of them easy-going married fellows with children, and with viewpoints that could not be called unlimited!

Most returns bring to mind some form of romance, and this is what counter-balances the little tradgedies that somehow crept in, and which we like to keep buried.

Who does not delight in the return to friends? Especially to those unseen for long periods. Or to a mother or father strolling the sunset path. The return to work, after a season of rest or recreation, is always a happy event, or the return to home after a long journey in new and interesting lands.

To be missed, and to miss those you love, is to evidence sincere companionship. And worth, often or never recognized before, appears as something thrilling. It is a good thing for the best of friends, and the happiest of married folk, to be separated at intervals. Often we are understood and appreciated most after the return.

The happiest return, however, is that one to which, and with which, we carry something that brightens the life, or locality concerned.

SUMMER COTTAGE VISITORS

'Tis strange that summer visitors are usually the kind
Who bring their appetites and leave their bathing suits behind.
They bring their flannel trousers and their outing raiment fine,
But when it's time for swimming trunks they always borrow mine.

Sometimes they bring a friend along we've heard no word about.
An extra room is needed, so from mine I'm ordered out.
I grin and say: "It's quite all right.
The merrier the more!
And anyhow I've found that I sleep better on the floor."

We stretch the dining table to accommodate the throng.
I scarcely hear what mother says,
the distance seems so long.
The salt's a city block away; so's
sugar for the tea,
But in the gayety which reigns they're never passed to me.

Pile up the place with visitors!
What's mine is theirs to wear.
I couldn't stand a summer home
unless my friends were there.
And I wouldn't want a castle on the river Thames or Rhine
Unless I had it crowded with those happy friends of mine.

That article nine of the Constitution of the Commnwealth of Pennsylvania be amended by adding thereto the following new section:

Section 18. The city of Pittsburgh may build, purchase, lease, as lessor or lessee, maintain or operate transit subways and other local transportation facilities as public improvements, including any structures, conveyances, appliances or appurtenances necessary or incidental thereto, and including underground or overhead passageways built in connection therewith, and the police powers of the Commonwealth shall apply to such publicly owned transportation facilities similarly as to other public improvements. Said city may acquire, by eminent domain, either the fee or easements within land necessary for the construction or operation of such transportation facilities or for the disposal of earth or material excavated in the construction thereof. Properties within said city which may be peculiarly and especially benefited through the construction of such transportation facilities may be assessed, to pay such benefits, in accordance with existing or with future law or pursuant to statutes enacted prior to the adoption of this amendment but made effective thereby. Such special assessments, when so levied, may be made payable presently at one time or in installments over a period of years, and, when fixed, shall be credits in indebtedness incurred or such purposes in calculating the debt of the municipality. For the purpose of paying any part of the cost of acquiring such transportation facilities, the city of Pittsburgh may incur indebtedness, to the extent of two and one-half per cent of the assessed value of the taxable property therein, in addition to all indebtedness authorized for other or general purposes, but only with the consent of a majority of the electors voting on the question at an election to be held in accordance with law.

That section four of article fifteen is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 4. The General Assembly is hereby authorized to provide for the consolidation of the county, poor districts, cities, boroughs and townships of the county of Allegheny, and the offices thereof, into a consolidated city and county, with the constitutional and legal capacity of a municipal corporation, to be known either as "Greater Pittsburgh" or "Metropolitan Pittsburgh" or "City of Pittsburgh (Metropolitan)," and to provide for a charter for its government, and to fix the name thereof in the charter. The said charter shall be submitted to the electors of said county at a special or general election to be provided for therein. If the majority of the electors voting thereon in the county as a whole, and at least a majority of the electors voting thereon in each of a majority of the cities, boroughs and townships thereof, vote in the affirmative, the act shall take effect for the whole county.

If rejected, the said charter may be resubmitted by the county commissioners to the electors from time to time, but not oftener than once in two years, until adopted. Until a charter shall have been adopted as aforesaid, the General Assembly shall have the power to amend or modify the said charter, in which event the charter as amended or modified shall be submitted and resubmitted as aforesaid.

It shall be competent, subject to the police power of the State, for the Legislature to provide in said charter:

I. For the exercise by the consolidated city of all the powers and duties vested in the county of Allegheny, and the poor districts thereof, and such other powers appropriate to a municipality as may be specified therein, except such powers as are specifically reserved by this section of the municipal divisions herein provided for.

II. For the election of a board of commissioners, by districts and/or at large, by the electors of the consolidated city, the number to be fixed by the charter, in lieu of present county commissioners in which board shall be vested all the powers of the consolidated city except as otherwise provided in the charter.

III. For the organization of a government for the consolidated city, and for the appointment and/or election of any officers thereof, created by the Constitution, or otherwise, and to provide for their powers and duties.

II. For B(5T18 ;c-rmhliE, m3 . . . . O . . rr

IV. For the organization and reorganization of all courts, other than those of record, in the consolidated city, and for the appointment and/or election of the judges and officers thereof, and for the procedure thereof, including the right to provide that said court or courts the courts of record, which courts may exercise the jurisdiction, powers and rights of the magistrates, aldermen and justices of the peace, and such other jurisdiction and powers as may be conferred by law.

V. For the transfer to and the assumption by the consolidated city of the property and indebtedness of the county of Allegheny, and the poor districts thereof, and of such property and indebtedness of the cities, boroughs and townships thereof as relate to the powers and duties of said consolidated city, and to provide for an equitable adjustment and arrangement with respect thereto and for the payment of such indebtedness, and, for this purpose, any taxation therein, arising thereby, shall be uniform taxation within the meaning and intent of other provisions of the Constitution.

VI. For the assessment of property for taxation, the levying and collecting of taxes, and the payment of the cost of any public or municipal improvement, in whole or in part, by special assessment upon abutting and non-abutting property specially benefited thereby.

VII. For the creation, by the board of of regulating the location, height, area, commissioners, of districts for the purpose bulk and use of buildings and premises.

VIII. For the creation of indebtedness by the consolidated city within the limits now or hereafter imposed upon cities by other provisions of the Constitution. Such power to create indebtedness shall not impair the power of the municipal divisions, within the consolidated city, to create indebtedness within the limits now or hereafter imposed upon such municipalities by other provisions of the Constitution.

IX. For the creation, by the board of commissioners, of special districts for the purpose of carrying on or carrying out any public or municipal improvement, not for the exclusive benefit of any one municipal division; and, for the payment of the cost and maintenance of such property or improvement, or any part thereof, special taxes may be levied throughout such special districts, respectively, separate and apart from the general consolidated city tax.

X. For the exercise of such powers by the consolidated city as may be necessary to enable it to carry on and carry out such municipal and metropolitan powers and functions as the General Assembly may deem advisable and expedient and for the general welfare of the said city and its inhabitants:

Provided, however, That it is the intent of this section that substantial powers be reserved to the cities, boroughs and townships situated in Allegheny County. To this end, the charter shall provide for the continued existence of the said cities, boroughs and townships, as municipal divisions of the consolidated city, under their present names and forms of government, subject to the laws now or hereafter provided for government of municipalities of their respective forms and classes and to the powers conferred upon the consolidated city by the charter, and with their present boundaries. Any two or more of said municipal divisions, or portions thereof, may, with the consent of a majority of the electors voting thereon in each of such divisions at any special or general election, be united to form a single municipal division. Wherever a portion of a municipal division is involved, the election shall be held in the entire municipal division of which the said portion is a part.

The said municipal divisions shall have and continue to have the following powers:

I. The constititional and legal capacity of municipal corporations.

II. The power to levy and collect taxes and to incur indebtedness, subject to the limitations which are or may be imposed by law upon cities, boroughs or townships of corresponding classification, for the purpose of carrying out any lawful power of said division.

III. The power to acquire, own, construct, maintain, operate or contract for all kinds of public property, works, improvements, utilities or services, which shall be within the municipal division and, where authorized by law, without the limits of the municipal division. Subject, however, to the right and power of the consolidated city to construct, acquire, maintain and/or operate public works, improvements, utilities and services of all kinds, including through streets, highways and/or bridges for the use and benefit of the consolidated city and its inhabitants.

IV. The power to maintain a local police force and local fire department, either paid or volunteer, with the necessary buildings, appurtenances and equipment therefor, which may be independent of or supplemental to the police force and fire department of the consolidated city.

V. All other powers not specifically granted by the charter to the consolidated city: Provided, however, That a municipal division may surrender, by a majority vote of the electors voting thereon at any general or special election, any of its powers to the consolidated city, subject to the acceptance thereof by the board of commissioners.

After a charter has been adopted as aforesaid, it may be amended as follows:

I. In matters which relate only to the powers of the consolidated city and which do not reduce the powers of any one or more of the municipal divisions thereof by the General Assembly: Provided, however, That any amendment which changes or modifies the form of government of the consolidated city, or the number of or manner of election of the commissioners thereof, shall not be effective until such amendment shall have been ratified by a majority of the electors of the consolidated city voting thereon at a general or special election, to be provided for in said amendment.

II. In matters which reduce the powers of any one or more of the municipal divisions of the consolidated city, such amendment, enacted by the General Assembly, shall not be effective until it shall have been ratified at a general or special election, to be provided for in said amendment, by a majority of the electors voting thereon in all of the municipal divisions affected thereby, and by a majority of the electors voting thereon in each of a majority of said municipal divisions so affected.

Recruit On Coast Plays 7-hit Game

San Francisco (AP).—For eight years leading batsmen of the Pacific Coast league had been aiming at a record for continuous hits until Dick Gyselman, a rookie, stepped up to the plate in one of the games near the tail end of the 1932 season.

When the recruit shortstop of the San Francisco Missions finished his day's work at the plate he had a perfect record of seven hits in as many times at bat.

The record was set in 1924 by Emmet McCann, Portland regular, who drove out seven singles. Gyselman's hitting was more impressive than his predecessor's as he clubbed out a triple, two doubles and four singles.

As Opposite As Day and Night; That's McKee and Jimmy Walker

By Noel Thornton

New York—Scintillating James J. Walker and the man who has taken his place as mayor of New York city, dignified Joseph V. McKee, have only two things in common. They are close personal friends, and both began their careers in Greenwich Village—Walker as a song writer and McKee as a newsboy.

Otherwise they are about as opposite as the two poles, each attaining popularity in the metropolis through directly opposite methods and personalities.

Where Walker is suave, witty, something of a hail-fellow-well-met, McKee is quiet, pleasantly stately, industrious. Walker was known for the disregard for timepieces, but his successor is not only punctual, but one of the few instances when he loses his good humor is when he is forced to waste time. He is at his desk every morning at 9, and rarely leaves until 6.

McKee Younger Than Walker

McKee is 43 years old, 8 years younger than his predecessor. But if seen together one would scarcely notice the difference in their ages.

Walker always has been a sort of ambassador from Greenwich Village and Broadway in New York politics. McKee really belongs to the Bronx ,and he is the first mayor to come from that section north of the Harlem river.

Although his flair for wise-cracking is best known to the public, Walker is noted for his ability quickly to assimilate knowledge of problems. After a few glances at an intricate political document he could arise and deliver a lengthy address that would show he had a thorough understanding of the subject.

McKee has a quiet humor of his own, but he doesn't go in for the "gag" jokes of a vaudeville blackout variety. When he campaigned for his post as president of the board of aldermen, in which race he polled 6,000 more votes than Walker, his speeches were distinguished for their informative quality. He wasn't the platform performer that Walker was, but the voters knew what he was talking about.

He Knows Mayor's Job

McKee is no novice in the mayor's job. The frequent and long absences of Walker from his post have given him much experience in serving as temporary mayor. He isn't the ironclad Tammany servant that Walker is.

Where Walker boasted in his last campaign that he would be "a Tammany mayor," McKee has not hesitated in more than one instance to oppose policies of his Tammany superior which he did not approve.

McKee's private life is as quietly unobtrusive as Walker's is effervescent.

Walker's liking for travel, Broadway night life activities, the theater ,sports and gay companions is well known.

McKee has never been seen often around Broadway, and he seems to have no great enthusiam for the spotlight ceremonies that the mayor's office demands.

His sports activities are confined to golf, in which he usually shoots in the 80's. He likes to spend evenings alone translating classical literature, a habit held over from the days when he taught Greek, Latin and literature at Fordham university. He is married and has two sons.

Hefty Boilermaker Builds Summer Brawn

Lafayette, Ind. (AP).—If there are no Red Granges or steamrollers on the Purdue university football squad when it assembles for fall practice for its most difficult schedule in history it will not be the fault of summer occupations.

During the vacation Boilermakers were building brawn. There are three ice men and four members of highway construction gangs on the squad. In addition there are three life guards, five laborers, one park recreation director, one golf course constructor, one Olympic games contestant, one dairyman, two members of construction gangs, one employe of an ice cream factory, one member of a civil engineering camp, and an oil station attendant.

Parish Keeps Relic From Church Foes

Malaga, Spain (AP)—The image known as "the Christ of Mena," which was thought to have been lost in the 1931 orgy of church burning, is safe and scarcely damaged, says Salvador Gonzalez Anaya, president of the academy of fine arts.

He adds that the statue is being "kept safely while the minds of the people are perturbed by religious matters."

The image was made by Pedro de Mena in 1658. It was in the church of Santo Domingo here, burned in May, 1931, and Senor Anaya says the image was saved only after a sharp fight between members of the parish and the rioters.

HORSE TRAINED ON RANCH WINS AUSTRALIAN HURDLE

Melbourne, Australia (AP)—Polygonum, a former ranch horse, has won Australia's greatest hurdling event—the Grand National Hurdle—and a prize of $6,500.

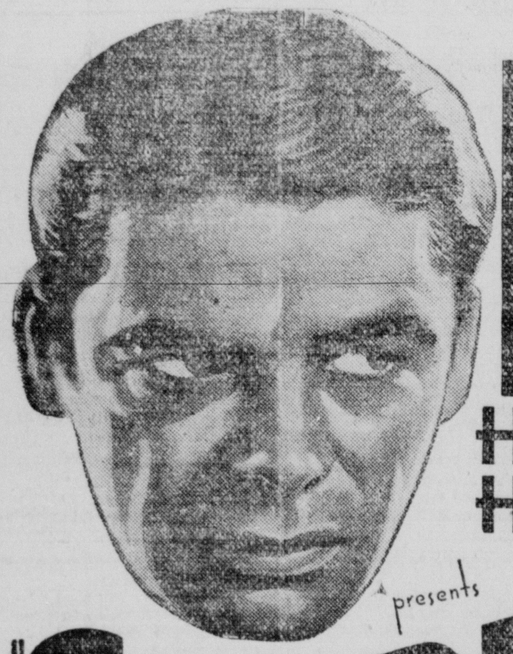

On a ranch in Victoria, Polygonum, used for rounding up cattle, became famous for the way in which he took fences in his stride. He was speedy, too. His first race was in a country hurdle event and he ran so well that he was entered with the metropolitan cracks—and beat them.

Cattlemen who backed him out of sentimental reasons got odds of 20 to 1.

S. B. Snow, chief of the forest service in California, has announced $3,584,615 will be expended by congressional action in the fiscal year in national forests within the state.

ADS BIG PART IN RECOVERY

Newspaper Advertising Will Stimulate Early Return To Normalcy.

Bedford Springs, Pa., Sept. 10—The twenty-fifth annual convention of the Pennsylvania Electric association at Bedford Springs hotel brought its three-day session to a close Friday with papers and discussions before the commercial and engineering sections and election of officers.

Advertising will play a prominent part in the reconstruction of business, declared Leonard Dreyfuss, president of the United Advertising corporation of New York, in presenting a paper on "What Are We Going to Do About Tomorrow's Business?" before the commercial section. "In my judgment,' he said, "America is not so much ending a business cycle in 1932 as it is commencing one. These are days when business must be fast on its feet. None of the old accepted formulas will work. 1932 is going to create an entirely new set of business leaders.

"Time is a great healer and in the last two years the country's entire surplus of shoes and clothing and automobiles and what have you have almost completely worn out. This fact alone will stimulate buying gradually, first and then in increasing momentum as the months roll on. It requires no prophet to predict a turning of the corner. I believe the return of so-called prosperity will be more gradual than most of us care to think, but it is relentlessly sure.

Advertising Important

"In the reconstruction of business in America, advertising must necessarily play an important part. It is the spokesman of the manufacturer to the consumer. Of the thousand-odd stocks on the New York Stock Exchange big board some 300 own a national trademark which is instantly known to the public. These are the companies that are paying dividends because their product has a wide public acceptance and is not subject to the devastating price-cutting which is felt by unbranded commodities."

Frederick City Fathers Shut Off Water To County Poorhouse

Action Of Mayor And Aldermen To Force Bill Payment Only Causes Montevue Officials To Use Own Supply.

Frederick, Sept. 10 (AP)—At the order of the mayor and aldermen of Frederick, the city water department Thursday shut off the water supply to Montevue hospital, the county home for the poor.

The action, officials said, was taken because the Frederick county commissioners refused to pay a bill of $400 for water supplied the institution during the last year.

Officials of the home apparently were unworried, and they started to pump water from a huge spring on their property to supply the needs of their property, which houses about 175 persons.

The dispute dates back to the drought of 1930, when the city water supply became low and county authorities granted use of water from the spring on Montevue property.

The county claims that as long as the city had sufficient water in its mountain storage dam, the county was to receive water free for Montevue from the city mains, and when the mountain supply failed the city, the city was to have the right to use spring water at Montevue.

The city charges that no such agreement was made and it fulfilled its obligation when it charged off the bill for $200 water service to Montevue during the drought period. It also points out it installed a fire hydrant at Montevue without expense to the county and laid a pipe to conduct water from the spring.

Several weeks ago the county commissioners were served notice the city intended to shut off the supply unless the bill was paid. At a meeting Wednesday night the board of Aldermen instructed the water department to serve notice Thursday morning the supply would be cut of Thursday afternoon.

Mayor Elmer F. Munshower said the action was the only step that could be taken to collect back water rents.

Minnesota Hunters Face Great Season Of Bird Shooting

Minneapolis (AP).—With an estimated 40,000,000 pheasants on the wing, and a two-months duck season, Minnesota expects to hear a lot of cannonading before the snow flies.

Approximately 1,000,000 pheasants, it is estimated, were shot during the brief open season last year, but state game men say Minnesota still has more of these gaudily-colored, fast-flying birds than any other state.

Minnesota started cultivating pheasants for game about 17 years ago with a few dozen pairs. They have been carefully protected and fed, with sportsmen's organizations providing grain during severe winters. Now, says W. D. Stewart, state game and fish commissioner, ordinary limiting of seasons should assure a permanent supply.

"Collegiate" Emperor Plans To Westernize Asian Realm

Paris (AP)—A handsome, athletic youngster with the appearance of a snappy college boy sailed from Marseilles in August to take over the reins of his native 'Annam (French Indo-China).

He is Emperor Bao-Dai, 19-year-old ruler of this Asiatic state, which can be compared in the size of its area and population to the state of Ohio, and which since 1886 has been a French protectorate.

Boa-Dai succeeded his father, the late Emperor Khai Dinh, to the throne in 1825, and was crowned in the following year. As a boy of 10 he came to France to complete his education.

Emperor Bao-Dai is an enthusiastic sportsman. His favorite hobby is riding on the drive of the Bois de Boulogne. He is also an amateur tennis player.

A keen studetn of history and literature, the young potentate has a marked interest also in the theatre, and delights in musical plays. He is fond of Bach, Beethoven and Mozart, and in his leisuer hours plays classical music on the piano.

Annam's ruler is returning to his native country with western ideas in his head. His first act, he says, will be to do away with caste rule, reform the judicial system, and open more schools.

He will be assisted by Prince Vinh, his cousin, who has watched his education in France, and is reputed to be a champion of modern reforms. Western methods of government have already been introduced by the present minister of finance of Annam, Tai van Toan, who is a graduate from a French college.

While educated entirely along Western lines, the young monarch has not neglected his mother tongue and is quite familiar with the medieval customs of his country.

An old Annamite priest accompanied the young prince to France, and raised him in the strict Annamite tradition. Under him Bao-Dai has learned the complicated Chinese characters and the language of his native country.

Value Of Human Body Drops 30 Per Cent

Raleigh, N. C. (AP)—The chemical value of the human body shows a drop of over 30 per cent in the last five years, says Dr. Arthur J. Wilson, chemistry department head at North Carolina State college.

Dr. Wilson figures the per pound value of the human body has fallen from over six cents in 1928 to four cents now.

Using beefsteak, lard, sugar and ordinary mineral salts, as equivalents of the protein, fats and other components of the body, Dr. Wilson calculated that at 1928 prices, a 150-pound man was worth around $9, but that at present prices he is worth only $6.

Inspection Limit Is Growing Nearer

Motor vehicle owners have less than a month in which to comply with the law and have their vehicles inspected, the depjartment of revenue warned today.

On and after October 1, inability to display a gold and blue inspected and approved sticker renders the owner of any Pennsylvania registered car in operation liable to a fine of $10 or five days' imprisonment. They also face the danger of having their registration privilege suspended. This latter penalty can be imposed when vehicles are considered unfit and unsafe for operation.

The close of the inspection period midnight September 30 will be followed immediately by a three months' arrest or enforcement period. Enforcement will be by the state highway patrol with local police authorities co-operating.

Absence from the state during the inspection period does not excuse car owners from the inspection. Inspection must be made by an official inspection station nearest the point of entry into Pennsylvania.

Cows In "Shelters" Give Better Milk

Houston, Tex (AP)—A giant "umbrella" has been devised by J. E. Foster, veteran dairyman near here, to make his cows give richer milk.

Foster said exhaustive tests showed cows sheltered from excessive sun heat gave milk with greater butter fat content. So he originated a big shed-like contrivance, mounted on four strong upright timbers, which is dragged about his pasture as the sun's changes in position require, to furnish shade to his animals throughout the day.

Foster first began to thing about the matter when he noticed that cows milked at night gave 1 per cent less butter fat than those milked in the morning after hours free from the sun's rays.

HEN'S PATH OF GLORY LEADS BUT TO SKILLET

Gavi, Italy (AP)—Because his hen laid 33 eggs in eight days and thereby attracted world interest a farmer residing near here chopped off her head and consigned her to the family skillet.

When the hen outdid herself by laying eight eggs in a single day, news of her performance was broadcast far and wide.

Queries began to come in such numbers that the farmer finally became exasperated. That evening the hen adorned his dinner table.

The Reasons

Real Estate has again proved its superiority as an investment; during the past three years it has shown lower depreciation and better income than Stocks and Bonds. Our investments are first mortgages, reduced monthly, on well-located, modern, residential property; Real Estate cannot run away, the monthly reduction covers depreciation, if any, and insurance protects in case of fire loss. Our mortgages are never hypothecated; they are always and all of them in our vaults.

All persons who receive money for this Association are bonded beyond the receipts in their hands at any time and all money received is deposited daily in the Mellon National Bank, Pittsburgh, The Pennsylvania Company, Philadelphia, and the Harrisburg National Bank. In these Banks our funds are secure against loss. We are concerned about neither defalcations nor bank failures.

We borrow no money, we have no creditors; the entire assets of this Association belong to and are held for its stockholders. An institution that owes no money is safe and free from embarrassment.

Dollars invested here are always full-size dollars, they do not shrink; withdrawal may be had on 30 days' notice at the full amount paid with dividend to date of withdrawal. Dividends are 5% a year, paid semi-annually by check mailed June 30th and December 31st. In addition to the dividend, we make return and pay the Pennsylvania four mill personal property tax. An investment so safe, paying 5% free of return and State Tax and withdrawable at full value on thirty days' notice is worth your consideration.
